WOMEN VOTERS HOLD CAMPAIGN MEETING

The Women's Forum is strong Organized in Vancouver—P.C. Candidates for Civic Honors Addressed Female Audience, and Are Limited to Ten Minute Speeches.

Vancouver, Jan. 7.—For the first time in the history of Vancouver women voters arranged and conducted last night a civic election campaign meeting. The society is known as the Women's Forum, composed of women who have the right to vote in civic elections. Five of its leading members had seats on the platform, one of these, Mrs. James MacKay, being in the chair. Of the candidates for the council, license and park boards, ten appeared and these were limited to ten minute speeches by Mrs. MacKay. Most of the audience was composed of women. Mayoral-elect Hester, returning to the city day by acclamation, gave them an address on the principles of civic government and added a little advice urging them to patronize such stores as paid a living wage to girls.

ROAD MAKING.

The Government of Alberta has spent in the past year, $1,400,000, and one-half millions of dollars in making and maintaining roads and in building bridges in the Province. This sum is a small amount when compared with the money collected and spent by the councils of the Local Improvement Districts in the construction and repair of local roads. At the last session of the Legislature, the Government was given the authority to borrow the sum of one million dollars to supplement the portion of the ordinary income devoted to road work. With the understanding that the money borrowed should be spent in works of a general and permanent nature, such as the construction of main roads and the erection of bridges. Such roads and bridges, being of the nature of improvements for the general benefit of the Province, rather than the particular benefit of the districts in which they are located, and being designed for future as well as present use, the Legislature recognized the propriety of making the cost a general rather than a local burden, and also of assessing part of it against those who in future years will derive benefit from its expenditure. The proposal to have highways and bridges of this general and permanent character built with borrowed money repayable in a term of years, is on all fours with the method by which paying operations and other costly permanent improvements are carried out in cities and towns. The permission to borrow for this purpose was not, however, made an excuse for cutting off the grant ordinarily made from the current revenues for general road and bridge construction and repair, and beside the million dollars borrowed and put into the main highways four hundred thousand dollars from the year's revenue were spent in carrying out work along the total lines.

The total output, $1,400,000, is a large sum to be devoted in a single year to our inland transportation service in a Province as young and as sparsely populated as Alberta. In a Province of less ample resources or less assured future as an appendage of the Dominion, it would be of questionable wisdom. If it were practically possible, under our conditions, however, the amount is not excessive, and may properly be regarded as only instalment of an indefinitely larger sum which it will be necessary to devote to the same end during the next decade. In spreading out the cost of the hitherto unoccupied districts of known and certain fertility. Railways are being extended with unprecedented rapidity, and making possible the settlement of country not previously peopled. If this spread of settlement is to be facilitated as the circumstances warrant, and the settlers given the opportunity to turn the natural resources of the country to account, this can only be done by a vigorous and sustained campaign of road-making, carried on with an impartial regard for the needs and claims of the various parts of the Province, and limited in scope and energy only by the amount of the money and the time available for the work. The new Rural Municipalities act, which empowers the local rural districts to borrow money on a rate of interest as low as one per cent, and to amount for the construction of roads, will facilitate the carrying on of this great task. It is not, however, to be assumed as the intention of the Government is to shoulder off the burden upon the municipality, and to either rest from the work of road construction or to slacken its efforts in that direction. The task is one too large to be handled with the best results by either the Government or the municipality, and must continue as it has done in the past, the co-ordinated cooperation of the Provincial and local authorities, and be borne by the combined resources and efforts of the Province and the municipalities.

Speaking in Montreal shortly after the Saskatchewan Provincial elections, Hon. Robert Rogers made statements to the effect that the Scott Government had been guilty of dishonest and discreditable methods during the campaign. The accused Government, on the meeting of the Legislature, had a committee appointed to inquire into the truth of these allegations, and invited Mr. Rogers to appear and tell the committee.

Resisting no response from that gentleman, Mr. Scott and his colleagues now propose to call the attention of the Governor-General-in-council to the fact that Mr. Rogers' "discreditable" feature is of course necessary under our system of Government, but it will destroy whatever chances the petitioners would otherwise have of carrying their appeal. If they were allowed, constitutionally, to put the matter before His Royal Highness without the "council" having a voice in the matter, something might be done; but as the "council" consists of Hon. Robert Rogers and his colleagues who have defended his conduct, the Council is not likely to be so decided against the appellants before it has been presented. Perhaps, however, the plaintiffs have less hope of getting their case before the Governor-General-in-council at Ottawa than of drawing public attention to the irresponsible character of Mr. Rogers' remarks. That should hardly be the province of the Legislature, but the truth on any conspicuous occasion since he joined the Ottawa Government. The public must be fairly well posted on his reliability by this time.

Consumers' leagues in many United States cities conducted a self-denial campaign recently in which they refused to buy foreign goods. The immediate result was a drop in prices and an enormous increase in the visible but unwanted supply. The dealers have begun shipping some of the surplus goods to Canada, at prices which would enable merchants on this side of the line to retail them at lower prices than are demanded for the genuine product. Wholesale dealers in Toronto and other centres are now calling upon the Government to boost the duty and shut out the "flood" of goods from the foreign market. The Government has not yet sufficiently advanced state of protection to the suitable response would be to have them "dumped" literally upon the dealers interested in the market.

President Taft favors the submission of the Panama dispute to arbitration, and says he will do what he can to give effect to this view. The preliminary negotiations are being carried on by the State Department. The Panama Canal is a subject of great importance to the United States, and the President's view is a strong one. He has declared his intention to support the canal, and to see that it is completed. The Panama Canal is a subject of great importance to the United States, and the President's view is a strong one. The Toronto Mail and Enquirer has been reported to have been the first to turn the natural resources of the country to account, this can only be done by a vigorous and sustained campaign of road-making, carried on with an impartial regard for the needs and claims of the various parts of the Province, and limited in scope and energy only by the amount of the money and the time available for the work. Remarked on the Side

The slims mill of two selling prices and high buying prices is divided between the producer and the consumer. These two (says the Monetary Times) have a case against themselves. The issue having been thus narrowed down, the economic situation of the country is not so much a matter of fact as of opinion.

The British Suffragettes are alleged to be going to try the case of a silent prayer. If the silence should be too intense, however, the British public will not be so much a matter of fact as of opinion.

A business case in Montreal was described by Judge Laet as not being fit for any place except the inferior courts. If delivery is accepted of all the things recently considered fit for this place, the role of the law will be very humbling.

An exchange remark that the table of comparative values shows that, as a general rule, the value of a thing in any respect superior to the cast-iron law. That is true, but at the same time, the value of a thing in any respect inferior to the cast-iron law.

INQUEST INTO THE CAUSE OF MAN'S DEATH

Deputy Attorney-General, Clarry, Acting for the Crown in Butler Inquiry.

TWO NEIGHBORS AND POLICE GIVE EVIDENCE

Mrs. Butler Told the Same Story to Both Police and the Neighbors.

The inquest on the death of Sydney Butler, who was shot by his wife, Mrs. Butler, on Second street last Friday night, was started yesterday. The proceedings of the session, in the morning were taken up with the evidence of Mr. Williams, Vice Constable Clements, Constable Shaw and Sergeant Smith of the city police, and the two young men Sinclair and Smith, who occupy the shack adjacent to the jailhouse. Mr. J. P. Clarry, deputy attorney-general, was the investigator for the city, and Mrs. Butler's interests were in the hands of Mr. J. P. Clarry.

The first clash between the counsel occurred when Mr. Clarry objected to Mr. Clarry's testimony regarding the fact that Mrs. Butler's husband was in the shack at the time of the shooting.

furniture was in order, and not disarranged. After Vale had put the revolver in his pocket, he did not see it again.

Sinclair testified as to Butler's condition and said that there was quite a lot of blood on his head and running down his face. Butler's wife was unconscious and his clothes were soiled with blood. Butler was on his knees and seemed to be in a state of collapse.

Sinclair: "No, I said 'Maybe he killed it.'"

Sinclair: "You had heard no previous row?"

Sinclair: "No."

Sinclair: "He had not previously spoken to Mrs. Butler. As regards the carriage, he believed Mrs. Butler had told him Butler had said he would not keep it."

Mr. Clarry: "When Mrs. Butler came in, was she not in a state of collapse?"

Sinclair: "Yes."

Mr. Clarry: "Her hearing did not appear to be put on?"

Sinclair: "No."

Coroner Forth: "What do you mean by state of collapse?"

Sinclair: "She was crying and starting to tell the story and breaking off, and seemed to feel pretty badly, and was very excited."

Mr. Clarry: "She knew what she was saying?"

Sinclair: "Yes."

Coroner Forth: "It is evident he does not really understand what is meant by the terms 'collapse' and 'unconscious'?"

Sinclair: "No."

Neighbors for Three Weeks.

Sinclair went on to say that he had been neighbors for three weeks and had heard no quarrel. Sometimes he had heard talking and laughing; but he had never heard any noise.

Mr. Clarry: "You saw nothing improper in the shock at any time?"

Sinclair: "No."

Reginald Smith, room-mate of Sinclair in the shack, had previously lived in the room with him in Edmonton for two years. At present he had no business. He was a miller. He had worked for the C.P.R. at their freight station on the hill.

Mr. Clarry: "Do you corroborate what Sinclair has said?"

Smith: "Yes."

Mr. Clarry: "William B. Johnson was sworn and stated that he had accompanied Sergeant Smith, Constable Clements, to the shack. They first went to Newwood pharmacy and saw Mrs. Butler and her husband. He went to the shack from the drug store, accompanied by Vale, while Sinclair stayed to guide the ambulance. Constable Johnson went to the shack and looked at the body, and said Butler was dead. He heard Vale trying to cheer up Mrs. Butler, but not after conversation. He had known Mrs. Butler since last April. He believed he had seen Mrs. Butler, or Alice Smith, in Sheridan, and that he would not take Sinclair on his word."

Mr. Clarry: "You know Mrs. Butler?"

Johnson: "No."

Mr. Clarry: "Was Mrs. Butler present?"

Johnson: "No."

Mr. Clarry: "Was Mrs. Butler present?"

NEITHER SIDE HAS ANY DESIRE TO RESUME WAR

Peace conference delegates are expected to continue sessions immediately after the Orthodox Christmas holidays—possibly by January 10.

London, Jan. 7.—There practically is no disposition in London to doubt that as soon as the delegates of Hellenic, Greece, Montenegro and Serbia have met in the orthodox Christmas holidays, the peace conference will be resumed. There is a deep-seated confidence among all parties against the re-opening of hostilities, although the possibility of such eventually still are uttered. At the same time, the delegates are occupied in their friendly duties to the delegates, and in case this should prove sufficient, the ambassadors are entering for the best method of intervention.

London, Jan. 7.—The peace conference has broken up. "Suspended" is the official word used to put the best face on the fact that the conference has failed to resume its sessions. The delegates, in fact, for the moment complete. Both sides have returned to their respective homes, and a single substantial item, and they may have a meeting outside, the outlook is for a resumption of the war with all its appalling suffering and loss of life.

In fact, at the present moment it is only necessary for either side to give 48 hours' notice of an intention to terminate the armistice and then the guns will begin again. It is believed that the powers are urging Turkey to come to terms with the allies, and in the event of their failure, some form of intervention will be necessary.
